Has your home suffered water damage and you suspect mold contamination? Do you have health concerns as a result?

Your inquiry will be met with friendly concern by Pierre Michel Cajuste, owner of EnviroBliss, a mold remediation company located at 325 Flatbush Ave., corner of 7th Avenue, in Park Slope. Pierre and his crew specialize in the least toxic and effective treatment of water damaged homes and offices, in contrast with conventional mold remediation firms. EnviroBliss uses non-toxic products that have stood the test of time, which not all green products do. Pierre is licensed and experienced in hygienic maintenance and refurbishment of heating, ventilation, and air conditioning systems, both residential and commercial. All workers are NYS-licensed and certified by the ACAC, American Council for Accredited Certification, formerly known as the American Indoor Air Quality Council. Expect the best quality HEPA vacuums and the latest in least-toxic fogging methods that capture and remove suspended micro particles left behind after conventional remediation. Pierre has worked with many families where individuals that have asthma, allergies, and sensitivities to mold and chemicals. Pierre can help your family to a healthier home, as he has with so many other individuals and families.

May Dooley, mold inspector and owner of EnviroHealth Consulting, Inc., says of EnviroBliss: "Pierre has worked with many of my mold inspection clients. These individuals largely come through doctors' referrals and tend to be very sensitive to mold. Invariably they comment on how accommodating and detail-oriented he and his workers are. A recent comment from a couple living in Manhattan was, 'Pierre is amazing! We are so happy with his work!' I have worked with Pierre for almost 10 years, since the company was founded in 2007. Clients even beyond the tri-state area, as far away as Pennsylvania and Delaware, have spoken highly of his work. I relax when I know that EnviroBliss will be on the job."
